Review: Web sites to watch

C-Spam

www.cspam.com

This little site offers you a choice of music from many soothing classical artists to play while you watch a scrolling display of junk e-mail. The site is obviously anti-e-junk, a problem that anyone with e-mail can relate to.

The Real World Houses

www.realworldhouses.com

For fans of MTV's "The Real World" or for others who despise the show but still watch it, this is an interesting net nugget. The houses used for each season of "The Real World" are broken down with pictures, floor plans and a list of problems the production crew encountered.

Get Bent

www.fork-you.com

I haven't had much time to try it yet, but this site has step-by-step instructions on how to bend forks with the power of your mind. Sounds crazy, but Anya Ubermole claims anyone can learn to do it, so use the force and give it a try.

Stickman Karate

www.evolver.co.uk/wayofthestick.html

This is a site for a fun karate game where you are a stickman fighting other stickmen. The graphics aren't anything special, but if you're just looking for something to kill time, this will do it.
